

Should Homework Be Part of a Daily Routine

by Arsalaan Bajwa, Grade 6

There are a number of reasons why homework should be a part of a daily routine of the elementary program. It teaches students to work independently and to develop self-discipline, encourages them to take responsibility for completing the tasks assigned and moreover, homework motivates them to use their time wisely. Self discipline gives you power to stick to your decisions and follow them. Using time wisely makes life simpler and easier and lowers anxiety and stress in life. Responsibility improves life by making us more confident, a better role model and improves decisions and relationships. These skills are essential for leading a successful and happy life.

Working independently helps you work in your own place without having someone to depend on. You can concentrate better and work much faster. Doing your work independently helps with making decisions as you are the only one responsible for the job. You become more efficient, it makes it easier to focus, get the challenge to work alone, get things done quickly and you get the credit for completing it. There are many benefits to having self discipline. Self discipline establishes inner strength and your character. Self discipline allows you to withstand temptations and it makes it harder to be offended. It also helps you build better relationships. Self-discipline enables you to make better choices.

Doing homework has also permitted students to seek initiative, in addition to maintaining a certain degree of responsibility. Having responsibility makes you become more confident, and you solve more problems. Another benefit is that when having responsibility, you experience better relationships, and you can be a role model. When you are responsible, you will be an influence on the people around you.

Time management has always been crucial for a successful life and now, in these times, it is needed more than ever. There is a lot of competition for good colleges and universities. Good time management teaches us, as students, how to stay ahead of our busy work schedules. We can easily figure out how much time we have and how to successfully finish our assignments. It will give us more time to enjoy other things in life and help lower our anxiety and elevate our moods.